PROGRAM

Mike Lella presented a fascinating story about his father, Giuseppino Lella (Pino) who worked to defeat the Germans during their Italian occupation. Pino was a musician, but the war re-directed his efforts to help Jews and some downed American pilots escape to Switzerland. His language skills resulted in his being selected as personal driver for the highest-ranking German general in Italy where he became a spy for the allies. The information he gathered was handed off to his uncle who radioed the information to the allies. As the Germans were escaping from Italy Pino was ordered to take the German general into custody and deliver him to the allies. This fascinating story is told in the bestselling book "Beneath a Scarlet Sky" by Mark Sullivan.

MARBLE & LUNCH MONEY

Doug Hardie presented Don Viera's winning marble ticket. I sure hope he remembers to give the $20 to Don. Just kidding Don.

John Sanders won the lunch money.
